Fine Decoration Day Foem Written by a Well-known Man. The following poem was written by Bissell's many friends and the public. It is kindly furnished by a friend of Col.

Bissell's:
There stand among you here to-day,
Men who have stood in war's array,
Who oft have seen the deadly fray,
And over earthworks led the way—
Just twenty years ago.
He was the seen that the seen ago.
It is the fore stort, the rebel yell;
They forward pressed when others fell,
And dashed among the foe:
They fought, they marched and fought again,
in trenches tolled with might and malg,
The sun beat on them and the rain;
Wounded, they suffered every pain—
Just twenty years ago.

Brave men, they conquered in the fight. Their cause was just, their purpose right; Day dawned upon their country's night—The sun of liberty shines bright Where all was dark before. But in the conflict foil the brave; They died their country's life to save; To some a resting here we gave—The battiefeld one nighty grave To countless thousands more.

Know ye, whose halls with cheer abound, Whose homes with joy and mirth resound. The price the solder paid? The toils the armies did endure—Privations, battles—to secure these rights to you and make so sure That those may now invade?

, that my muse with voice and pen-uld catch the fire of gods and men, Could easied the free of gods and men, could easied the free of gods and men, the could be of the could be of

A fight begins as does the storm— Black clouds pile up and densely form— The are is strangely still.
A flash is seen, and here and there A rumbling comes on the thick air. Few drops at first, then torrents pour, Then the fierce wind, then roar on roar— Chaos breaks loose at will.

Thus armies form, on either hand, Silent and grin they waiting stand, While skirmishers deploy; Upon the picket lines a shot, The skirmish line then take it hot; Then "forward" is the order given, Both masses move like storm clouds driven Each other to destroy.

Disaton's saws are in the hardware stores at Birmingham, England, and so with many other special articles of American make. They can compete with the world. Of course, there is no denying that the existing tariff arrangements hamper this competition, but foreigners will still buy many of our products when they are once convinced of their worth. I know of no manufacturers who are really pushing with any energy their goods into markets beyond our own boundaries. Look at the English method," and Mr. Porch drew from his desk an elaborate pricellet of English iron manufacturers printed in a half dozen different languages. "The Britisher has his representatives in Mexico, in Japan, in South America, in the Indies, and forces his goods on the attention of the consumer. This is twhat our representative men must dog the who is first in the field will reap the benefits. "Mexico offers a particularly favora-

What our representative men mins use. He who is first in the field will reap the benefits.

"Mexico offers a particularly favorable field for the operations of our manufacturers. There is a wide sale of hardware particularly. The Germans now principally control this business, and the hatchets and other edge tools which they offer are wortheless as pewter. Ask a Mexican merchant whether he has not American goods, and after bludling you he will uncover his American stock. They try, of course, to sell their Dutch goods first. In my mind it would be an excellent thing for manufacturers of this country to club together and establish an American fron and steel good emporium in Mexico, where our manufactures could be exhibited for sale, not with the idea of making money at first, but in the hope of rich returns in the not distant future. We may feel that the highest price of laber in this country puts us at a disadvantage, but let us be as energetic and aggressive as our competitors and the market for American-made argetic and aggressive as our competitors and the market for American-made ar-ticles will be expanded immensely,"

Boy—Yesh, sir. Got marks in three plashes on my left arm!

Over dry ditches, through thick brush, Drivers shouting, on they rush, By gallant capatins led; The yous full two feet high now jump As the wheels at the s log or stump; But not a horse cheesa his mad pace, No cannoneer moves from his place— Yull speed they crash ahead. Six guns, six calssoms, sixty steeds, Eighty good men of mighty deeds, Rush up the hill's steep grade; One moment all confusion seems . The number of cut of men and teams; The next, six guns are ranged in line, Six bright brass pieces clean and fine, As if on dress parade,

Along the line no cheer is given,
As first we charge, then back are driven,
Too deadly is the strife!
They know right well, our weary men,
As foot by foot we yield, that when
The rebels reinforced shall make
Another charge, our lines will break—
We fight for very life.

All ready, boys, one volley more,
From our hot rides on them pour;
Then give the guns full swing.
Away from front, there! give them room,
Six throats of brass sound boom on boom,
Six throats for mad measurers of hell—
Death's angels on the wing.

The pieces from the charge rebound,
The roar shuts out all other sound,
The hills and valleys shake;
The shell go shricking through the wood,
Mowing great gaps where just now stood
The serried ranks; defiant, bold,
Of men who mean those woods to hold
Yes—and our guns to take!

The guns leap high with horrid fun, Shrieks, screams and curses blend in one Awful and steady cry we change,
Shells for quick cannister we change,
Bepress each piece for shorter range,
Then hurl the fron from throats of brass;
See fifty fell—a quivering mass
Of blackened misery!

Constitutions are much alike, and in nine-tenths of us the same causes produce the same effects. Vertigo, dizziness, or pain of any kind, excepting that of an injury, can come only when there is in our bodies some impurity of the blood which we have not sufficient vitality to throw off without help. Therefore, the proper thing to do is to get immediately the necessary help. No aid is so effective as Brandern's Pills. When you feel these ills coming on take from three to ten of these pills, according to your weight, and be relieved at once. Never put off the feeling by thinking you will soon be over it. Take the pills and do not rack the constitution.
